Re: NDAA - Oppose allowing unsafe Boeing MAX flight crew alert system in new aircraft

Dear Leader Schumer, Leader McConnell, Chairman Reed and Ranking Member Inhofe:

The undersigned 921 Ethiopian Airlines Flight 302 crash victim families and friends from across the world OPPOSE any National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) amendment that would extend the time for Boeing, or any aircraft manufacturer, to avoid installing modern, safe flight decks in future aircraft. Such an amendment is not relevant to national defense and would make civilian aircraft less safe.

Boeing and industry insiders are advocating an extension in the NDAA. They are inviting more crashes, they have not learned the lessons of pursuing profit over safety, and their request should be rejected.

The Aircraft Certification, Safety and Accountability Act (ACSAA) prohibits FAA from approving, after December 2022, any future aircraft designs which do not comply with an eleven-year-old FAA flight crew alerting safety rule. All manufacturers have complied with the 2011 FAA flight deck rule, except Boeing.

After the ET302 crash of the Boeing MAX 8 occurred on March 10, 2019, the world learned about Boeing's fraud on the FAA relating to MCAS (maneuvering characteristics augmentation system). What is less known is that an old, confusing flight deck was found, by crash investigators, to be a contributing factor to the crash. The crew alerting system startles and confuses pilots with false and nuisance alerts who are trying to diagnose and correct problems in life threatening conditions.

We have since found out that the FAA issued a 2011 rule which requires airplanes to include modern flight crew alert systems that are intuitive while accurately diagnosing and prioritizing problems to assist, rather than confuse, pilots. That rule was long overdue because five prior crashes showed how unsafe the old system was.

In 1996, two Boeing 757 airplanes, AeroPeru 603 and Birgenair 301, crashed, killing a total of 259 people. Subsequently, three more crashes, this time involving Boeing 737s, occurred: Helios 522 – 121 dead, Turkish Airlines 1951 – 9 dead, and Aeroflot 821 – 189 dead. Pilot confusion from the crew alert system was determined to be a contributing cause in all the crashes.

To our sorrow and loss, Boeing advocated and received an FAA approved exception from the flight crew alert rule for the MAX 8 and 9 aircraft. But predictably the old system again caused pilot confusion with false and nuisance alerts in the JT610 and ET302 crashes which killed 346 people, including our loved ones, in 2018 and 2019.

In March 2022, a report by MITRE Corporation's Center for Advanced Aviation System Development joined others in finding that the old crew alert system contributed to the Lion Air and Ethiopian Airlines crashes.

“...we concluded the exception granted by the FAA for pilot alerting on the 737 Max was a critical link not only in the chain of events that led to the accidents, but also in Boeing's decision to limit the disclosure of MCAS.”

We have heard industry insiders and Boeing claim that some pilots want commonality between old and new aircraft alert systems. Those same insiders were a part of the problem before, and are motivated by profits. They have not learned the lessons of seven crashes. This is an aerospace engineering safety issue relating to human factors and system safety assessments, not airmanship. All the data shows the modern crew alerting system is more safe. Zero data supports the bogus "commonality" argument.

Safety in many industries would be frozen in time if incumbents could rebut safety engineering data by merely claiming that some people are comfortable with the old ways.

Therefore, we demand that you oppose any NDAA amendment that would grant an extension of time for Boeing to certify yet another aircraft that violates safety rules as the company pursues shareholder profit and executive stock option value.

Sincerely,

ET302 victims' families and friends
